CALL FOR PAPERS

“THE NEW CHALLENGES FOR THE ILO: MISSION, TRIPARTITISM, REGULATORY MECHANISM AND LABOUR STANDARDS”

Ca' Foscari University, 15 November 2019

Throughout the course of 2019, 100th anniversary of the ILO's foundation, Ca' Foscari University of Venice organized conferences and lectures in order to raise awareness among young students about labour issues and to involve researchers and scholars in analyzing new labour law scenarios and perspectives.

As a conclusion of these celebratory events, on November 15th 2019, Ca' Foscari University will host the conference “The new challenges for the ILO: mission, tripartitism, regulatory mechanism and labour standards”.

This call aims to invite the scholars to investigate what the role of this international organization could be in the current international scenario, how it could act to make growth sustainable and inclusive and what impulse it can offer to consider work as an instrument for dignity and freedom.

The theme therefore invites to reflect on the different issues concerning the ILO's regulatory action, in a global scenario characterised by new evolutionary factors of different nature: geopolitics and economic issues (neo protectionism, nationalism), social issues (growth of inequalities, crisis of labour law), legal issues (growth of soft regulation tools, internormativity), technological issues (digital revolution). Also the ILO Report on Future of work, which promotes an economic agenda focused on the person, represents a useful basis of debate to address the issues of digital work regulation, of universal guarantees regardless of the nature of the work relationship, of working hours and new organization of work etc., and the specific role of the ILO in promoting a better job.

SUBMISSION OF THE ABSTRACT:

Abstracts (maximum 1000 words, complete with name of author, University and position) in pdf format should be submitted online no later than September 20th, 2019.

Each person can present only one selected paper, although multiple submissions and co-authorship are allowed.

The papers and the abstract must be sent to the following addresses:

dirittolavoro@unive.it

The abstract's paper will be examined by the Conference Scientific Committee.

The results of the selections will be notified no later than September 25th, 2019.

If accepted, the full paper (no more than 30.000 characters, including spaces, footnotes and appendix) has to be sent no later than October 30th, 2019 to the same addresses.

The paper accepted by the Scientific Committee will be presented on 15th November 2019, at Venice Ca' Foscari University.

In addition to the paper abstract, the speaker is also invited to submit a proposal for full panel session (no later than September 20th, 2019), linked to the topic of the conference, indicating title of proposed panel, name of speakers, discussant and chairperson and the purpose of the panel. Every full panel session, dedicated to a specific theme, will consist of two or three papers and one discussant who will be also the chairperson.

Every speaker will have twenty minutes for the lecture.

The publication of a book containing the selected papers is also planned.

The Seminar organizers will provide for the scholars accommodation for the night before the event (14th November).
