LLC Early Career seminars on Comparative Labour Law – ECOLL

Unjustified dismissal and judicial compensation: which role for the judge?

3rd and 4th February 2023

@ Zoom

❖ What is LLC?

LLC-Labour Law Community is an association of labour lawyers born in Italy in 2020 aiming inter alia at: a) the promotion of research and teaching in the field of labour law and the dissemination of the culture of labour law in the university and social spheres, also through the comparison of methods and merits in the various areas of commitment of labour lawyers; b) the development of the scientific debate at national and international level among academics, scholars, experts and practitioners of labour law, according to canons marked by pluralism and transparency of ideas and orientations; and c) the valorisation of the labour law studies of the scholars of the new generations with the aim to foster development of international relations in the field of labour research.

❖ What are the ECOLL Seminars?

In the framework of its 2022-2023 work programme, LLC has initiated a cycle of seminars dedicated to early career scholars (including PhD students). The seminars have a twofold character: on one hand, the seminars will be based on a comparative law methodology; on the other hand, while being dedicated to early career scholars, they will aim to nurture the dialogue between them and more established researchers.

Through the ECOLL seminars, the links between academics and research centres belonging to different legal cultures will be fostered. Furthermore, PhD students will have a chance to build their own intellectual trajectories, in cooperation with their peers who do research in others universities.

❖ How will the ECOLL Seminars be organised?

In order to achieve the aforementioned aims, the structure of ECOLL seminars is ideally as follows:

- a) First part (half-day/morning): theoretical background
- b) Second part (half-day/afternoon): group-work around a practical case study
- c) Third part (half-day/morning): restitution of results and open discussion

Established scholars will be called to animate the first part – which will indeed take the form of a proper online conference – and will also be asked to provide participants with some essential readings. LLC members of the International Relations Group will animate the Second part (group-work around a practical case study) and facilitate the final restitution of results during the Third part.

A maximum number of 30 early career scholars, including PhD students, will allow an efficient management of group work.

The Organising Committee, composed by Tatiana Sachs (Paris Nanterre - tsachs@parisnanterre.fr), Luca Ratti (Luxembourg - luca.ratti@uni.lu), Cinzia Carta (Genova - cinzia.cart@unige.it), Elena Gramano (Milan Bocconi - elena.gramano@unibocconi.it), Stefano Bini (Cordoba - sbini@uco.es), Chiara Garbuio (Venice - chiara.garbuio@unive.it) and Vincenzo Pietrogiovanni (SDU Odense – vincp@sam.sdu.dk) will further support and coordinate the group work.

The first ECOLL seminar took place online on 20th May 2022, on “The Status of Worker and Labour Law – Beyond Subordination?”, with the participation of Adalberto Perulli (Ca’Foscari University, Venice, Italy), David Mangan (Maynooth University, Ireland), Thomas Pasquier (Paris Nanterre University, France), Jesus Cruz Villalon (Sevilla University, Spain), and Manfred Weiss (Goethe University of Frankfurt, Germany). A video of the presentation is available here. Around 20 PhD students were selected and actively participated.
